

SCENE ONE (CO Start Here)

KENT
 (moving on)
 So, what did you come here to tell me?

MADISON
 Let me just see what page we're on...
 One sec...

SOUND (S4): PAPERS RUSTLING

MADISON (CONT'D)
 OH! Here it is. "Batman is gone, Superman."

KENT
 (aside, dropping character)
 I'm wearing the glasses.

MADISON
 Oh, yeah! How in radio can anyone tell whether you're Clark Kent or Superman? Without a visual, I mean. You sound exactly the same.

KENT
 (through clenched teeth)
 Because when I have the glasses on, the other characters know to call me, (deliberate)
 "Mr. Kent."

MADISON
 Ah, gotcha. Mr. Kent.

KENT
 Batman's gone, you say? What do you mean?

SOUND (S5): PAPER RUSTLING

MADISON
 Uh... "I mean he's gone, and... and... I'm... I'm..." Does Robin have a stutter in this timeline?

KENT
 (leading)
 Are you afraid you'll never see him again?

SCENE ONE (CONT'D)

MADISON

No. He's still got TV and movies coming out so--

KENT

(cutting her off, slightly annoyed)

Just the same, perhaps I should look into his disappearance.

End Here

Sure. Sounds like a plan.

(thinking)

Ooo. I hope I'm the Nightwing Robin. All the other Robins are kinda douchey.

MUSIC: TRANSITION MUSICSCENE TWO

NARRATOR

When Clark Kent, who is really Superman,--

MADISON

Are you going to say that through the entire show? Because everybody already knows that.

NARRATOR

--received urgent news from Robin, the young companion of the famous Batman, Superman hurried to the handsome mansion which the Dynamic Duo occupy in their true identities of Dick Grayson--

MADISON

"Madison Standish."

NARRATOR

Uh... right. Madison Standish and Bruce Wayne. Kent found the young Robin greatly agitated.

MADISON

(bad acting)

"Oh, gosh, what - what'll I do, Mr. Kent? What'll I do?"